"because funds of that size typically have a relatively small number of positions, one bad stock could have a large impact on the portfolio," he said.